STATEMENTS OF CAPTAINS AND

COACHES.
"I have unbounded confidence in the men representing V. M. I. I know that they will do their best, and while I am not willing to preand while I am not willing to go on diet victory, I am willing to go on that every man will battle record that every man will battle for the honor of V. M. I. We are in good condition, and after it is over, regardless of the outcome, will have no allibis to offer."—Captain Pongue, V. M. I.

"Both myself and my assistants have worked long and hard to get the team in condition. We have had some setbacks, notably the Virginin game and the setto with Morris-Harvey, but we have learned and the men have learned from these games. We are ready for A. & M. to-day, and will give a worthy team a worthy battle."—Coach Poague, V.

"It's almost too late to talk about the game now, isu't it! When I got the telegram asking for a statement I was somewhere in Virginia or North Carolina, and started to say nothing. What I am going to say is almost nothing. We hope to win; that's diplomatic enough for anybody. We are in good condition, and—well, I just hope everybody in Richmond, will, be not terrybody. Richmond will be out to see how good, or maybe how bad, we are."—Captain Hurtt, North Carolina A.

"I really believe that A. & M. has one of the best teams ever turned out in the South. I believe that V. M. I. has a good team. When two good elevens meet there is always a battle, and the pity is that one must come off second best. I believe my team will win, but there is always a slip. Anyway, we will give a good account of ourselves."-Coach Green, Carolina A. & M.

My administra-tion of lengue affairs cannot be so bad when they pick one of the fore-most public men in the country to oppose me."

Despite Anti-Game Talk, Tigers Are Expected to Prove Formidable Opponents.

Princeton, N. J., November 7.-The Higers wound up their mai prepara-tion for the game to-morrow with Harvard with a snappy signal and formation practice on Osborne Field this afternoon. Five hundred students paraded to the field and greeted the appearance of the squad with a wild demonstration of cheers and songs. The signal running was reconcered and signal running was prolonged and in-cluded everything the team knows, Each man received a maximum of individual attention from the coacher, Wilson and Logan, of the 1913 eleven, aided in the coaching.

Special attention was given to the punting. Law, Borden and Baker were averaged fifty-five yards and often sixty. Borden sent four straight ones down the field for fifty-five yards, and then added two more boots of sixty yards.
